342 Take Degrees At Graduation

• THE FALL CONVOCATION will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Lisner Auditorium.

Approximately 342 students will receive degrees at the University's 133rd Fall Convocation. Of this number, 114 are associate in arts, 39 Bachelor of Arts, 44 Bachelor of Laws, 21 Bachelor of Arts in Government and 7 Bachelor of Science degrees.

Dr. John F. Latimer will announce the convocation, his first official function since he was named Marshal of the University. He was tapped Saturday evening at the Homecoming dance as an honorary member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity for men.

The charge to the graduating class will be made by Dr. Colclough, Dean of Faculties. The orchestra will be under the direction of Leon Brusiloff and John Mason will play the organ. Rev. John R. Anschutz, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Georgetown will give the Invocation.

Four students will receive their AA degree with distinction. They are: Neil Goodsell, Margaret House, Bob Riggs and Blanche Watson.

Those receiving Bachelor of Arts degrees with distinction are: Herbert Kotz, Donald Pearce, Guy Waterman and Irvin Yalom. Donald Pearce also earned special honors in French.

The Graduate Council chairman, Dr. Bolwell, will present four candidates for Doctor of Philosophy degrees. They are: Frederick Bergmann, Lloyd Burhman, William Krivoy and Stylianos Protonotarious.

Ed Ferero Chosen Veep

• THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF Edward Ferero as the newly elected vice president of the Student Council was made at the Homecoming Dance. Other contestants were Ray Fox, Carlene Parker, Robert Riggs, and Damon Cordom.

In the special election, Ferero received 41.75% of the 436 votes cast. The Student Council had expected only 200 to 300 students to participate in the election.

Ferero is studying for a Master's Degree in foreign affairs—international economics relations and is the University Housing Officer.

Ferero will be installed at the Thursday meeting of the Student Council by Frank Haynes, Advocate.

The special election was called because more than half of the semester remained when the past vice president, Warren Lytle, resigned. If less than half a semester had remained, the Council would have had the power to appoint a vice president.

Barnaby and Priscilla Wander, as Drama, Dance, Art Cooperate

• ON THURSDAY EVENING, December 3, the musical, "Sing Out, Sweet Land," opens in Lisner Auditorium. The opening performance will be dedicated to two distinguished members of the audience, President and Mrs. Marvin.

William Callahan, managing director of University dramatic activities, announced that since this second production of the 1953-1954 season at the University is the cooperative effort of three University departments, namely drama, dance and art, this musical is dedicated to President Marvin, his wife, and the faculty of the other departments of the University.

Under the direction of Dr. Vera Mowry, with dances by Miss Elizabeth Burtner and choral direction by Edward Cashman, "Sing Out, Sweet Land" is presented as a musical biography of America. Covering nine periods of American song, dance, and costume, the musical is tied together by the character of Barnaby Goodchild, who wanders through the ages, dancing and singing with all the people he encounters. Barnaby is being played by Tom Douglass, while Jeanni O'Neill plays Priscilla, the girl who pursues him from Pilgrim to Flapper days.

Tickets to "Sing Out, Sweet Land" are now on sale in the Lisner Auditorium at $1.50 for orchestra and mezzanine and $1.00 for orchestra circle. Reservations are also being made for blocks of seats for social groups.

Goats Pick Judges for Annual Show

• MISS HELEN LAWRENCE, professor of physical education; Wilson E. Schmidt, professor of economics, and Dean William Turner of the Junior College, will be the judges of the annual Panhellenic Goat Show to be presented in Lisner Auditorium on November 20. William C. Callahan, assistant professor of speech, will be the master of ceremonies.

A large revolving trophy will be presented to the sorority with the winning skit. Kappa Delta, which has won first prize for the last two years, will be trying for its third win, and the honor of gaining permanent possession of the trophy. Two smaller trophies will be given the second and third prize winners to keep.

Tickets to the goat show may be purchased for 25 cents at the Student Union or at Lisner Auditorium the night of the performance. Also required for admission is a contribution of canned goods for Jim Gibbons' Country Store.

Homecoming Dance Highlights Spectacular Weekend; Boasts Queen, Floats, Football Game

• ONE OF THE most spectacular Homecoming weekends in the history of the University was climaxed Saturday night by the crowning of Ellie Rapp, Kappa Kappa Gamma nominee, as the 1953 Homecoming Queen.

Many returning alumni and students were present at the dance to witness Glen Archer, Student Council president, crown the queen. Also featured at the dance were the announcements of the float contest winners, the election of Ed Ferero as Student Council vice president and the new members of Gate and Key, fraternity men's honorary.

ODK Taps

Hal Mesirow, Omicron Delta Kappa president, tapped the new members of the organization. Membership in Omicron Delta Kappa is determined by service, leadership and scholarship. Ralph Flanagan and his famous orchestra provided the very danceable music for the evening.

Highlighting the Pep Rally Friday night were Denise Darcel and a heavy blanket of snow. Russ Roberts was the master of ceremonies at the Rally where the ten finalists for the queen were selected by Steve Korcheck, Bill Neal, Dick Drake, John Prach, Carl Bodolus, Tom Bosman and Ray Fox, senior members of the football team.

Those chosen as finalists were: Phyllis Ames, Louise Clarke, Lyn Henderson, Barbara Holly, Aphy Macotsin, Betty Newel, Betty Potzler, Ellie Rapp, Pat Reed, and Joan Wisser.

Floats Postponed

Because of the weather, the float judging was postponed until Saturday morning. Of the twenty-five entries, those of Delta Tau Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha and the Newman Club were chosen as the winning entries.

The Alumni Coffee Hour, which was well attended by former University students, was held Saturday morning, a tea was given at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house where Mrs. Charles E. Wilson and Mark Evans selected the Homecoming Queen from the ten finalists.

Surprise Terps

At Griffith Stadium Saturday afternoon the real "tea party" of the weekend found Maryland's "Terrible Terps" overpowering an outmanned Colonial squad in the second half, 27-6. Trailing by only one point 6-7, at halftime, the smaller Buffmen just ran out of gas against tiers of well-rested Marylanders in the last two periods. The defeat was far from humiliating, however, as evidenced by the congratulatory telegram sent by Terp coach Jim Tatum to University coach Bo Sherman after the contest.

ODK, Gate and Key Pick New Members

• THE FALL SEMESTER tapping of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity for men and Gate and Key, fraternity men's honorary, was held at the Homecoming Dance, Saturday.

ODK Officers

The officers of ODK are Hal Mesirow, president; Jim Robinson, vice-president; Pete Renz, treasurer; and Mr. Nessell, secretary. Membership in ODK is based on outstanding work done for the University and a high scholastic average.

Basis for membership in Gate and Key is exceptional contribution made by a member to his fraternity. The University's chapter of Gate and Key is Alpha chapter and the Beta chapter is at Maryland University.

Honorary Elects

Those elected to Gate and Key are: Bob Riggs, Acacia; Ed Jaffee, Alpha Epsilon Pi; Jim Adams, Delta Tau Delta, Tom Brown and John Leonard, Phi Sigma Kappa; Dick Gibbs and Ray Fox, Pi Kappa Alpha.

In keeping with the atmosphere of superstition, omens and mystery, the Junior College Council headed by Carol Picton, has announced that the dance will be called the "Thirteenth Thump" featuring a mystery dance of the same name.

The Junior College Council has worked in collaboration with the Dance Production Groups and the Student Council to plan the dance which will be held from 9 to 12 p.m.

Student Bar Association Gives Dance Saturday

• THE ANNUAL FALL DANCE sponsored by the Student Bar Association will be held at the National Airport Terrace Room this Saturday from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

This function fulfills in part the two-fold professional and social purpose of the organization. It is carrying out the objective asserted by John T. Fey, Dean of the Law School," to interest more and more of the Law school students in the Student Bar Association and in doing so to make them feel more a part of the school."

Tiny Meeker and his orchestra will provide the dance music for the semi-formal affair. As a special feature of this dance, the law school faculty, during intermission, will put on a surprise skit.

Tickets may be obtained from any Student Bar Association member and are sold at the Student Activities office. Price of the tickets are $5.00 per couple.

It's the replaceable filter in Medico that makes the big difference. That little filter traps dangerous nicotine and tars, disagreeable juices and flakes.

Rev. Beal Appointed Canterbury Chaplain; Club Plans Retreat

• DESPITE LAST SATURDAY'S game, where religion is concerned the University and Maryland University have no quarrel. The Reverend Mr. William Beal, who acts as the Maryland University Episcopal Chaplain, has been appointed by Bishop Angus Dun, of the Washington Cathedral, to serve in the same capacity at the University.

Pat Federico, acting president of the University Canterbury Club, announced this appointment with the further news that Episcopalian students and all other interested students are cordially invited to attend weekly luncheon meetings, beginning this Thursday, from 12 to 1:30 p.m., on the second floor of the Student Union Annex. Pat stressed that these meetings were open to all students and that one might come and leave at any time during the period. "They are informal get-togethers, with an occasional speaker," she explained.

Mr. Beal, who was a Navy pilot during the Second World War, and a June, 1952, graduate of Virginia Seminary, will be on campus on Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Building O, to attend the luncheon meetings.

Elections will be held in the near future.

Essays May Net Students Cash Prizes

• A CASH AWARD of $500 has been announced by the J. D. Matthews Testimonial Dinner Committee for the best essay on "Communism and Academic Freedom," written by an undergraduate student of an American college or university.

Essays must be limited to two thousand words or less and should be submitted not later than February 1, 1954. All manuscripts must be typewritten. Only original essays will be considered.

The winner of the award will be announced on March 1, 1954.

Manuscripts should be mailed to the Matthews Award Editor, The American Mercury, 11 East 36th Street, New York 16, New York.

Denise Adds Pep to Rally; "Loffs Futbol"

• DENISE DARCEL just "Loffs Futbol" and those who attended the pep rally held Friday evening evidently loff Denise, according to the rounds of applause she was given. Miss Darcell kindly consented to appear at the rally and spur the University on to a good game Saturday.

Engineering Majors Examine Production Line of Near Future

• "ENGINEERING OF TOMORROW" seemed to be the predominate theme of the three Engineering School society meetings last Wednesday night. The double E majors viewed details of a completely automatic production line, the ME's heard a paper presented on ramjet development and future applications, while the Civils were informed of the future of the engineering student.

The project, code-named Project Tinkertoy, is operated in pilot plant form by a private contractor as part of a large-scale production evaluation program under the Bureau's technical direction.

ASME

"The cruising speed of the airliner ten years from now will be one and one-half times the velocity of sound, judging from past aeronautical progress," predicted Dr. Walter G. Berl at the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' student branch meeting. Dr. Berl added that "The application of the ramjet engine to the engine of the airplane will play an important part in this achievement."

Dr. Berl, who is the supervisor of the ramjet research program at The Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory, in a timely and interesting talk on ramjet development compared this engine with the other major types of aerial propulsion, the rocket, turbo jet and the reciprocating engine.

His talk was supplemented with slides, graphs and motion pictures of the ramjet in flight.

This engine, Dr. Berl explained, is another example of how the scientist and the engineer "get around" the laws of nature for the benefit of man.

ASCE

"The future for young engineers is unlimited" reported Mr. Vincent B. Smith, President of the District Chapter of the A.S.C.E. and the Washington Editor for McGraw-Hill Company, at the American Society of Civil Engineers' Student Branch Meeting.

Calendar Note:

The District Chapter of the A.S.M.E. will hold their annual smoker for students on November 18 at the Annapolis Hotel. All Mechanical Engineering students are invited to attend. Further details will be published next week.

The country's six leading brands were analyzed—chemically—and Chesterfield was found low in nicotine—highest in quality.

Smash Hit

• FROM ALL APPEARANCES, the Homecoming weekend was a success.

In spite of bad weather, a spirited crowd turned out to see the Colonials hold Maryland to a 21-point lead.

School spirit is an intangible quality, and cynics say that it doesn't influence the outcome of a football game by much. But we think that without that intangible quality, which certainly possessed our team and our student body, George Washington wouldn't have made such a good showing.

The success of the dance can be measured from the net proceeds. A profit was made, and this is indeed encouraging, since preceding dances usually operated at a loss.

Of course, this is the first dance since 1947 at which a name band was present. Ralph Flanagan's name was sufficient to draw a large crowd; and his band was fine enough to keep this crowd dancing until 2:30 a.m. A vote of thanks should be extended to Mr. Flanagan, who, operating under difficulties, played overtime to make Homecoming 1953 a smash hit.

A vote of thanks should of course be extended to the Homecoming Committee, headed by John Buckingham and Carolyn Billingsley. The HATCHET wishes to thank personally Marty Barley, who kept the paper provided with information and stories regarding the progress of the Homecoming Committee.

Altogether, we can only say, Let's do it again in 1954!

Building Silenced

• THE UNIVERSITY IS taking steps to see that the disturbance created by the building next to Strong Hall will cease. The Business Office and Miss Kirkbride, director of Women's Activities, have taken the matter in hand.

Mr. Cosgrove, head of the Business Office, has asked any student with concrete information on the subject to write or see him. It is hoped that every student will cooperate in the matter.

Letters to the Editors

Dear Mr. Swortzell,

I have just finished reading your review on "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" in the November 3rd issue of the Hatchet. This note concerns your comment on the costume production of the play.

Mr. Swortzell, please pardon my boldness in questioning your unlimited experience in the theatre, but have you ever attempted to costume a show without financial aid of any sort? Granted that the costumes for "Our Hearts" were not of the professional variety, the best possible results were attempted with the least amount of supply. Their basis of selection was not "if it fits, wear it," but careful planning of the period during 1923 was taken into consideration and from there the costume committee did what was possible with what they could find from donations, the goodwill, and other meager sources.

In the future, I ask you to please take into consideration these latter points before you hastily criticize so strongly against an amateur production.

Sincerely,
A Costume Sympathizer.

(Ed. Note. Mr. Swortzell does not bite; therefore, we would appreciate any future correspondence addressed to him to come in signed. This also applies to any other letter.)

TO THE EDITORS,

Wednesday and Thursday of this past week an election was held for the Vice-President of the Student Council. Few people realized this startling fact until they saw the polling booth set up in front of the Student Union. An even smaller number of people knew that there was to be an election forum held on Tuesday of the same week.

The position of Vice-President of the Student Council is ostensibly the second highest position in student activities at the University. Two years ago Bill Smith won the Omicron Delta Kappa award as the outstanding male senior for his work in this same post. Yet there was no mention in the HATCHET on Tuesday that an election was approaching, much less an election forum.

Where was the publicity for this event and for the election itself? While we are on the subject of publicity, what has the Student Council been doing this year? I am sure that their actions are of interest to some portion of the University; over one thousand students voted to put them in office. What are the various school and college sub-councils, the brilliant idea of the aforementioned Bill Smith, accomplishing in the way of activities this year. The Student Council minues, that are required by constitutional provision to be posted each week, were posted this week for the first time this semester.

The Student Council did an excellent job on the Freshman Orientation program, and the Homecoming celebration with Ralph Flanagan, Denise Darcel, etc. How is the student body to know what other things the Council is doing if publicity is not forthcoming? A special election for the Vice-President of the Student Council is an occurrence that is worthy of notice by the entire University.

Sincerely,

QUESTION: WHICH DO YOU prefer—day or night football?

Lenny Ciemniecki: I like night football because it's cooler.

Bob Cooper: Night football is better. Then I can do my homework on Saturday afternoons.

Jay Grosfeld: I prefer night football because it attracts a larger crowd and seems more exciting.

Cecilia Jaracz: Day football. I don't know why, but I just like it better.

Anne Johnson: I like night football much better. It's more dramatic and atmospheric to see only the players below you on the field, uninterrupted by popcorn venders and soft-drink men.

Jimmy Matthews: Night football gives more occasions for parties after the games.

Joe Nichols: Day football is easier on the players.

Ramsey Perry: I prefer day football because it is warmer.

Jean Sexton: I like day football much better because I'm used to it. It manages to break up the day more effectively.

Anonymous: I wish we could play Maryland in the dark!

Have You Met? Mary Freeman

by Sharon Doran

• HOW WOULD you like to go to the Olympics representing the U. S.? Or how about being on Life's cover? Would you like to be able to swim in such excellent form that you took the titles in the National Senior Championships? Sound impossible? Not to nineteen-year-old Mary Freeman, who has achieved all three honors.

This pretty blond senior, standing 5 feet 8¼ inches tall, with green eyes and freckled face, began her swimming career at the age of fifteen. She was first noticed swimming in the Walter Reed pool by her present coach, Jim Campbell, who thought she had the makings of a fine swimmer. She had. From then on, Mary has been winning medals and trophies by the dozen.

Her toughest competition was the Olympic trials. "Just as I made my turn to return down the length of the pool, I was in seventh place and I told myself, 'Come on Mary, you've been practicing for four years; we've got to do something.'" Mary placed first, with the other finalists just seconds behind, assuring her passage to Helsinki, Finland.

In the National Senior Championships she won the 200-yard backstroke, 100-meter backstroke and 200-meter backstroke. "I like free-style swimming most of all, but can do the backstroke the best."

It was at the Olympics that Mary met Jack Kelly, an Olympic sculler from Philadelphia, to whom she is now engaged. You see, the Olympics are great for a variety of things!

Who knows, maybe Mary will soon be swimming the English Channel in grand record time!

On Other Campuses

Yale Prof Claims Kids Less Rowdy

by Joan Drew

• "ON OTHER CAMPUSES" (as in octopus-octopuses; we know it's "campii," but the HATCHET is forced into displaying a certain amount of casual ignorance)—anyhow—"On Other Campuses" promised a few weeks ago to carry on with the latest news about coeducational dorms. However, the reports are still rolling off the ticker, so that subject will have to be kept dangling for a while . . .

Don't hold your breath.

A "Report Rash" is breaking out around the country. This epidemic has infected the older generation and is spreading across the nation like an old-time plague. Our thoughts, our innermost feelings, our very souls have been laid bare. We suspect that Kinsey started it all.

This is not a new disease by any means, but the great burst of concern for the health of present-day college students—both physical and mental—is a little disturbing. It's good for a few laughs, and actually does reveal some stimulating facts.

Dr. Seldon D. Bacon's emergence from his test tubes and statistics-gathering into a book on drinking in colleges has created quite an uproar. We mentioned that his conclusion, reached after many years of research, is that our generation hasn't yet gone down the drain.

Magazines all over the country have taken up the hue and cry, and last week Newsweek came through with a few more facts about our young, loyal, vital and dynamic fellow students.

Backing up the distinguished Yale professor's views, Newsweek seems to think we're a pretty cool bunch of kids.

What is this "Thing" about us that makes us so different? (You name it — we'll build a fence around it.) In spite of our parents' opinions, we bear not the slightest resemblance to the Roaring Twenties crowd. Nor are we reminiscent of the spastic Thirties.

You might as well face the horrendous truth. Researchers and interviewers all agree.

WE ARE CONSERVATIVE!

Vassar, Harvard, Howard, and so on, all say so. (Now don't take this too hard.)

Just to prove it, pick up any college newspaper you see. You don't see any? Drop into the office sometime. Okay—look at the front page. What do you see? This is strictly at random, remember.

From the "Muhlenberg Weekly," Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

"Muhlenberg-Lafayette Review Annual Football 'Peace Pact'"

"The respective student governments . . . accept . . . responsibility for a positive program . . . to prevent rowdyism and vandalism on the respective campuses."

How conservative can you get? They even spell the plural of "campus" wrong too.

Obvious exceptions to the rule of conservatism were none other than our own Alma Mater and Maryland. Plenty of whooptidoo before, during and after the game. It sort of gives you hope, doesn't it?

We have the Stanford University Humor Mag with us this week. None other than the famed "Chaparral." Known before as the dirtiest college mag in these United States, this is the type of joke you see: (Quoted from the "Tomahawk")

"The girl greeted her boy friend —'Notice anything different about me?'

"'New dress?' 'No.' 'New shoes?' 'No, something else.' 'I give up.'

"'I'm wearing a gas mask.'"

Graduates . . .

• THERE ARE additional invitations and announcements for the University commencement exercises Wednesday night for members of the graduating class. These invitations may be picked up at 706 20th St., N.W. Graduates and their friends and relatives will need these invitations to be admitted to the commencement exercises.

Play Review

Bea Lillie Knocks Critic out of Seat

by Lowell Swortzell

• LAST WEEK I SPENT evenings with two of the most wonderful women in the world. Lower your eyebrows because the experience was entirely legitimate. The women in question truly rate superlatives; Lilli Palmer is for my money the most beautiful woman in the world, and Beatrice Lillie is certainly the funniest.

Since Miss Palmer possesses a beauty that is fragil and rare, yet always forceful and alluring, it is unfortunate that she does not make her first Washington appearance in a more suitable vehicle than "The Love of Four Colonels." Although the play enables her to enact a variety of roles, it never gives her a role that can make the most of her loveliness and talent.

Favorite In London

The play, a great favorite in London and moderately successful in New York, can be admired for its central idea, which is one of the cleverest pieces of imaginative thinking to be put upon a stage in many seasons. At the same time, however, it has been several seasons since such a good idea has been executed with such disappointing results.

In the hands of a more experienced wit, say, Christopher Fry, the idea of having four colonels woo a sleeping beauty in the theatrical styles of their respective countries might result in a highly sophisticated and glossy play rather than the flat and only occasionally entertaining one that young Peter Ustinov has written.

Fortunately, my other love and everyone does love her, Beatrice Lillie, has come to town in a perfect vehicle, appropriately entitled "An Evening with Beatrice Lillie," and a more entertaining evening, or matinee, for that matter, you have never spent.

It surprises me to discover that many young people have not, or just recently have, discovered how great Miss Lillie's comic genius is. If you are one of these unfortunates, you are missing the greatest commedienne of your age. I told you superlatives were in order, and I meant it.

A Versatile Bea

All the sophistication and gloss missing in the play at the National are heaped into generous servings by Miss Lillie at the Shubert. What does she do? She appears in a number of skits, she sings some priceless songs, and she has a good time doing them.

See if you can make anyone laugh by giving exaggerated pronunciations to such words as passage, handsome, glue, chauffeur, or treasure, or by reciting "The Three Little Kittens." That's right, you can't. But listen to Beatrice say them, and you'll fall out of your seat.

Her impeccable timing, her fluid technique, and her trenchantly cosmopolitan wit along with that gift for seeming to laugh at herself makes her so human she can't miss. And she shouldn't be missed by anyone—human or not.

Foggy Bottom

by Hester Heale

● AS WE BROOD over beer and bromo, memories of Homecoming week end flit through our bloody, but unbowed head . . .

Friday: Snow falls on our fair city, adding to the festive spirit pervading the campus . . . and to the headaches of the citizens in charge of the week-end jollity. Early that morning we hear that Frank Haynes, chairman of the Monster Rally to be held in the parking lot, leaped from a window in the Sigma Nu house, his briefcase attached to his neck. Landing on both feet, Haynes was heard to mutter, "The show must go on."

And so it did, in Lisner Aud, highlighted by the pulchritude of the Homecoming Queen candidates and the cosmopolitan repartee of M. C. Russ Roberts and guest Denise Darcel. Shall we ever forget Darcel's comeback, when asked by the irresponsible Roberts whether she preferred offensive or defensive—(a propos of futbol—) "Well, that eez depending on who ees who . . ."?

Hershey bars to the Delts, the Zetas, and the Newman Club, winners in the Float Parade that took place at some ungodly hour Saturday morning . . .

Then there was the game, exciting from beginning to end. Never did find out who won; but who cares? Bourbon and ashes out of a dixie cup never tasted better; cigars never smelled so good; the band was never more inspired, and our Buffmen were never more magnificent than at this game on Saturday afternoon.

It was a still exultant student body that walked, crawled, wove, skipped, charlestoned, and generally poured into the Armory that night for the Homecoming Dance. What a great blasteroonie that turned out to be!

Everybody was looking dynamic in tuxes and filmy gowns . . . Flanagan was Flanagan, despite the fact that seven of his cohorts were hors de combat . . . Such mingling, table-hopping and living as I've never seen—dancing, too. All kinds of wonderful sights and goings-on: Beauteous Ellie Rapp being crowned Queen by S. C. Prexy Glenn Archer . . . Tom Beale, as ever, blocking our line of vision; everybody going ape at the news that Ed Ferrero is our new S. C. Vice-President; SAE Paul Jennings, looking efficient, moving sideways into a bucket of champagne; Avant-garde people sitting one out in the middle of the ballroom floor; Maxine Saurel Israel and Carol Fuller Hinrichs (Whose smiling faces are missed in the Onion these days) busy keeping Tom and Jock in line.

Goings-on on the bandstand, with lost earrings, shoes, flowers, Buicks, pinnings, free photos of Ralph; all this and Buckingham, too, whose praises of Steve Korcheck elicited the remark of the evening, Korcheck's "No comment."

Eventually the band stopped playing, and everybody picked up their tables, chairs, and broken bottles, and repaired to sundry smaller parties. I am able to report on only one of these underground affairs, that of the Tekes, who pledged Ralph Flanagan. He'll become an associate member when he comes back in January.

And here's some dirt on the SPE front: Sig Eps, beware of ADPi's. Four (4) brothers have been snared by these scheming females in the past 2 years. Take heed, Bill Jenny and Dan Sullivan. More next week, in the same foggy vein. Things are usually too disgustingly lucid, what?

Carry on, Campus.

YOU CAN'T GET A GIRL WITH A GULP

OR.. How do you know when your best foot's forward?

Once there was a Senior who was Shy. (Look, this is a story. It permits certain liberties with the truth.)

He'd call up a Girl, stammer incoherently through the Preliminaries, gurgle helplessly through the Bicuspids, and hang up. Dateless. One day his room-mate took him in hand. "Herman, old buddy," he said, . . . and unfolded a Plan.

Next day the Big Girl on Campus got a Telegram. A terse message. Simply: "Will pick you up at eight P.M. Friday. Regards. Herman H. Glockenspiel." She was Intuckered and waiting when Herman sheepished up the steps of her Sorority house.

"Are you Herman H. Glockenspiel?" she cooed. "Ulp," said Herman. "Ooooh," she said, taking his arm, "I just love Original, Masterful Men." Herman was on his way.

Now Herman has more dates than the Syrian Desert. Still makes 'em all by Telegram. No fool, this Herman.

When you've got a Date in mind —Whether it's with the Campus Queen, a Smith Siren or a Big Moment Back Home—a Telegram has the Man-of-the-world Approach that pleases. Equally effective, too, for birthdays, Mother's Day and Easter Messages, congratulations, or yaps to Pop for Cash, or to Sis to Airmail you The Baggy Sweater. Just call Western Union and see.

Slavenska Dances in 'Streetcar'

• THE SLAVENSKA - Franklin Ballet Company, starring Mia Slavenska and Frederic Franklin, with a company of fifty and an orchestra, will appear at the National Theatre for one week starting Monday, Nov. 16th, under the auspices of the American University Concerts.

A highlight of the Washington appearance of the Slavenska-Franklin Ballet Company will be "The Streetcar Named Desire." It represents one of the first attempts to tell the story of a great contemporary play by means of the contemporary dance. Mme. Slavenska, dances the ill-starred Blanche Du Bois, while Frederic Franklin, dances the leading male role of Stanley Kowalski.

During their week's engagement here, the Slavenska-Franklin Ballet Company will present a special children's matinee on Wednesday, Nov. 18th, at 3:30 p.m., at popular prices. The program will consist of "Swan Lake," "Portrait of a Ballerina," and "The Nutcracker Suite."

TEST TUBE ROW

• HAVE YOU EVER wondered about the many problems modern scientific developments have given to the human race and what their solutions are?

If so, hear them discussed at the meeting of the Washington branch of the American Chemical Society at the Cosmos Club, 22nd Street and Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., Thursday at 8 p.m. Dr. Ralph E. Gibson, director of the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory, will speak. The meeting is open to the public.

Gibson Speaks

Born in England, Dr. Gibson received his B.S. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Edinburgh. He came to this country in 1924 and joined the staff of the Carnegie Institute Geophysical Laboratory till 1946. During World War II he directed the University-operated Allegany Ballistic Laboratory at Cumberland, Maryland. He joined Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory staff in 1946 and was made director a year later.

All engineering enthusiasts are invited to hear a discussion of the problem of our dwindling petroleum and natural gas resources at Thursday's meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The public has been invited to this meeting which will be held in the Potomac Electric Power Company Auditorium, 10th and E Streets, N.W., at 8 p.m. Eugene Ayres, technical assistant to the executive vice-president of the Gulf Research and Development Co., will speak.

Mr. Ayres received his B.A. from Swarthmore College and worked with petroleum and other chemicals in various enterprises for ten years after. One of these enterprises was founding the Sharples Chemical Corporation with P. T. Sharples. He joined the staff of the Gulf Research and Development Co. in 1934 and ever since has been organizing and managing research on the manufacture and sale of petroleum products.

Authors Patents

He has authored forty-six patents, has written many articles and is an active member of the American Chemical Society, American Institute of Chemical Engineers, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Society of Automotive Engineers, American Petroleum Institute, Armed Forces Chemical Society, American Ordnance Association, and American Society for Testing Materials. He is also a consultant to several government agencies concerned with coal, petroleum, and power; and during the past few years he has studied national and international fuel resources, production, use and economy.

A $15,000 cardioscope was presented to the University Hospital's anesthesiology department.

This machine is one of the newest instruments for detecting heart disease and the only one of its kind in Washington. It was presented by Howard B. Fonda, senior vice-president of the Burroughs-Wellcome Co., a New York drug firm, to Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, the hospital's medical director, and Dr. Charles S. Coakley, the hospital's anesthesiology department director.

Designed specifically for graphically recording the heart movements and pulse rates of patients undergoing operations, the cardioscope greatly increases the safety with which various kinds of surgery can be performed on people with heart disease, Dr. Coakley said. Because it detects irregularity in heart or pulse movements immediately, it will help physicians in taking necessary precautions and in treating the irregularity.

Because the machine is non-explosive, it is much safer to use than the electrocardiograph, a similar instrument which has been used to record heart movements.

Each entrant should pick the score of the George Washington game, noting it in the appropriate blanks at the top of the contest sheet.

The winner or winners will be judged on the most correct games and the closeness of the spread of points to the actual spread in the GW game. (In case of ties, duplicated prizes will be awarded.)

All entries for this week must be in the contest boxes by Friday evening at 8.

Spirited GW Almost Spikes Terps

Rudin's Ramblings

• PLAYING THE BEST game in the University's football history, the mighty Buff finally gave in to superior man power. That's perhaps the best way of describing last week end's tilt with Maryland.

Not since Andy Davis and his team mates upset Virginia five years ago has a University club played so well. This year's eleven must rank near the top for guts, hustle, and team spirit. In a word, the Colonials played almost super human ball.

JIM RUDIN

That they lost is no disgrace. That they fell before the Terps by twenty-one points is no shame. The sheer power of numbers, quantity, not quality, was the Buff downfall.

As for the College Parkers, their aura of invincibility, their number-two ranking, and their dreams of real grid iron grandeur have faded. Their ends are not big league, their passing attack is nil, their second team is ragged, and their big hope for the future, Charlie Boxhold, is suspect. For a club hoping for a mythical national championship, their motto had better be, WAIT TIL NEXT YEAR, BETTER YET WAIT A COUPLE OF YEARS.

Despite the fact that it isn't wise to single out players for praise, we must salute Steve Korcheck, George Dancu, and, of course, Lou Donofrio for the great game they played. Donofrio was especially good. His two interceptions were things of real beauty. One steal set up the Buff touchdown, while the other staved off a Maryland bid for a six pointer.

We were very proud of the Colonials ability to check the Terps' famed punt return corps. In each previous game the Tatum men scored TD's via the runback route. Not so last Saturday! Every time the Maryland safety men hauled in a punt, press box enthusists cried, "TD, TD, TD!" The Colonials disregarded these pleas, and stopped the Monsters cold.

'G' Street grid stock hit a new high at the end of the half. Fans all over the country must have been shocked when that 7-6 score came through. It will be a real surprise if Maryland hangs onto that No. 2 ranking. We have the feeling that Mississippi or Alabama will knock off the Tatum Terrors (this description is used with grave reservations).

SIDELITES—The 27-6 score was the same that West Virginia beat Buff by . . . Despite the predictions of a Maryland scout, the Terp first team had to play most of the game . . . Bob Sturm had a frustrating day. He gained twenty yards on the ground, and lost the very same number . . . The Buff will trade spots this Saturday. They'll be heavy favorites to beat the winless Davidson Tiger . . . The Colonials play Maryland next year at Byrd Stadium . . . Here's hoping Boxhold doesn't improve . . . Virginia hasn't won since they edged the Sherman club .

Down Alden's Beat

Versatile Schlemmer Earns New Honors

• HE HAS NEVER MADE a team of any major sport at George Washington, although he has been given brief trials in football and basketball. He did earn two varsity letters as a member of the now defunct varsity swimming team. But despite this unimposing record he may be GW's best all-around athlete of recent years.

In fact, Roy Schlemmer played only a smattering of junior varsity basketball in three years of high school, but nevertheless, the other night he was tapped for membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership fraternity for men—his major achievement; two years as outstanding intramural athlete.

BOB ALDEN

In a short span of seven years Schlemmer has developed from an awkward, gangling youth of 16 years who could never make the grade in high school varsity sports, to an agile, mature young man whose brilliance in a variety of sports has earned him an awesome reputation in GW intramural circles.

So awesome was the sight of Schlemmer cavorting on merely the gridiron that a football coach of a rival fraternity, himself a veteran of inter-collegiate play, spent three years just plotting plays to cope with the passing and running of Schlemmer.

SANDY SCHLEMMER has been a leader all the way for Delta Tau Delta, especially in intramural sports. His athletic prowess combined with his personality and scholastic ability make him very worthy of his most recent honor.

Sandy, who blushes at the mention of his various achievements in sports, has been grabbing a pile of honors, however, for several years at GW.

In 1951-52 and 1950-51, he was of course awarded the plaque for being the outstanding intramural athlete. He paced Delta Tau Delta to the All-University sports titles in both those years.

He not only has directed the offensive attack in football for the Delts for five years, but also has been a consistent high scoring forward on the basketball team for four years, undefeated in heavyweight wrestling matches for four years, intramural free-style swimming champion since the dispersal of the swimming team a couple of years ago, and has starred in a host of other sports. He was once winner of the heavyweight boxing laurels, always a top hitter in softball for DTD, and also a good tennis player.

SANDY, A NATIVE WASHINGTONIAN, stands six feet, two inches tall, and weighs a compact 195 pounds. The 24-year-old law school student attended St. Alban's junior school and graduated from D. C.'s Western High School.

After graduating from Western High School in 1946 at the tender age of 16, Sandy waited around for several months until his seventeenth birthday, and then got his parents' permission to enter the U. S. Navy.

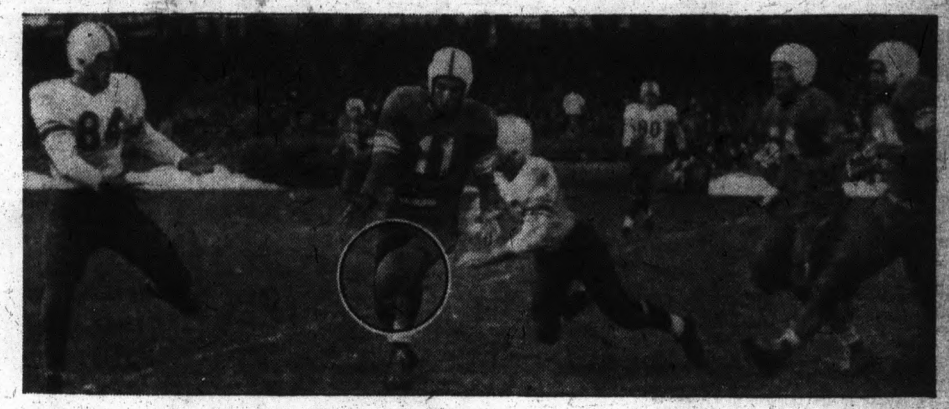

He served two years, from 1946 to 1948, as an electronics technician for Uncle Sam. This proved to be a valuable background for Schlemmer, for as an undergraduate student at GW in the ensuing four years he majored in electrical engineering. He finished his undergraduate work with a B-minus average.

Sandy entered law school a year ago, aiming in the direction of patent law. In addition to taking the full-time night law course (a four-year program), Sandy is engaged full-time as a patent examiner in the U. S. Patent Office. He has maintained a B-average in law school.

"PARTICIPATION IN INTRAMURALS has done a lot of good for me," says Sandy looking back over the highlights of his college activities. "I never had the time nor, I don't believe, the ability to play college football or basketball however much I would have liked to. But I gained the benefits from competition, team play and self-discipline, in intramural play just as I would have in intercollegiate play."

Speaking of time, Sandy never neglected school and social activities despite the time he spent on his school work and athletic interests. As an undergraduate he held office in his fraternity, was actvie in Gate and Key, and participated in numerous other activities.

It seems as though Schlemmer has been on the scene for about a decade, and the Delts undoubtedly wish they could keep him here for an actual decade or so more. It might well be a good idea for them, for GW will probably see few the equal of Sandy Schlemmer, Mr. Versatility and Mr. Intramural.

Maryland's Depth Halts Buffmen in Second Half

by Roger Spitzer

• ON MANY OCCASIONS, SPIRIT, hustle, determination and a fighting, fired-up underdog eleven can turn the tide of battle and upset a heavily favored, top-ranked opponent. The upset almost materialized last Saturday against Maryland U., but not quite, as the Colonials were felled, 27 to 6.

But the highly vaunted Terrapins had to unleash all their power in order to turn back the stubborn Buff. For the first half Maryland's feared offensive attack played second best to GW's stout defense led by Steve Korcheck, Dick Gaspari, George Danz and Lou Donofrio. The Terps picked up only 59 yards rushing and 35 via the air lanes as the Colonials fought stubbornly against their heavier opponents. The halftime score was only 7-6 against them.

The third quarter, however, found the Maryland team geared up as an upset was in the air.

Maryland scored first as fullback Ralph Felton bucked over from two yards out after a 42 yard pass play from Bernie Faloney to Chet Hanulak put the ball on the Colonial nine.

GW scored their lone touchdown in the waning minutes of the second quarter. Lou Donofrio intercepted reserve quarterback Charles Baxold's aerial on the Terrapin 42 and returned to the 18 before being hauled down. On the third down from the 16 yard line Bill Weaver took a pitchout from quarterback Bob Sturm and passed to Rickie Gaskell for the score.

In the third period after a blocked punt by Bill Walker gave Maryland the ball on the GW 35, Hanulak went 31 yards around end to score standing up.

After the ensuing kickoff, Weaver's fumble on the first play was recovered by Faloney, Maryland safety man, on the Colonial 11. After three attempts into the GW line had failed, Faloney carried on a quarterback sneak for the touchdown.

Again in the final quarter Maryland's second team pushed over another six-pointer, Joe Horning going over from the eleven to cap a 69 yard drive.

GW Favored Over 'Cats

by Jerry Davis

• GW'S IMPROVED Colonials find themselves in the unusual position of being overwhelming favorites as they tangle with winless Davidson, Saturday, at Davidson, North Carolina.

Davidson, about the smallest member of the Southern Conference in total enrollment, has been stumbling through one of its most disastrous seasons. Georgia Tech, Richmond, North Carolina State, Furman, Harvard, Washington and Lee, and even Presbyterian have soundly defeated the scrappy Wildcats.

Still starring for Davidson is Jimmy Thacker, the 5-foot, 8-inch, 165-pound halfback, who, although only a junior, has already established himself as one of the all-time leading ground-gainers of the Southern Conference. GW fans might recall that it was Thacker who galloped 98 yards for a Davidson touchdown last season in defeat as GW routed the Wildcats, 40 to 13.

Steve Korcheck, Richie Gaskell, and Dutch Danz, all good bets for all-Southern Conference honors, are expected to enhance their chances in a game that GW will be at least three touchdown favorites.
